Lebanese Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery Interest Group (LPRSIG)

Who we are:

The Lebanese Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery Interest Group (LPRSIG) is a student-led initiative founded at AUBMC. It is part of APSLD-CRT and aims at bringing together Lebanese medical students/trainees and medical students at Lebanese medical schools interested in PRS. LPRSIG is currently constituted of around 50 members aspiring to be future plastic and reconstructive surgeons. The goal of this network is to connect its members together as well as with the wider APSLD community, and provide them with mentorship, research, and clinical opportunities.

LPRSIG works toward its mission by splitting the tasks among its different teams:

- The future career planning team hosts talks with physicians and residents about different PRS topics, communicates available research fellowship opportunities with the members, and matches them with APSLD members for mentorship and research.
- The journal club team discusses PRS articles and/or projects conducted by LPRSIG members to be presented monthly by one or more of the members. This team also posts the most recent PRS advancements, discoveries, and innovations on LPRSIG Instagram account.
- The social media team hosts activities on social media platforms, mainly Instagram. Members of this team design the posters on topics communicated by the previous two teams.
- Our Liaison Officers represent LPRSIG at different Lebanese medical schools and spread the word about our activities to recruit new interested members.
